

Parents know to read to their kids at night - but what about math?

Bedtime Math helps kids aged 3-9 learn to love math as much as playtime or dessert.

No logins.
No drilling.
No scores.

Just a quick bite of wacky math –

It's nothing like school.

Did you know that...

Math skills at kindergarten entry are a better predictor of school success than reading skills or attention span.

Nearly half of all 8th graders can't line up fractions from smallest to largest.

The results are in! When families do Bedtime Math just a few times a week, kids' math skills improve.*

Our kids need to read to succeed—but they also need to do the math.

How Does It Work?

Have some math fun with the little ones in your life - bedtime, bathtime, anytime!

Every night we send out a wacky new math problem—by email, on our website, and on our free app in English and Spanish.

Whether it's flamingos, ninjas or pillow forts, every kid can see the math in their favorite topic.

Your kids will love you for it!

Mammals on the Run

Sure, you can ride your bike or drive a car to get places. But wouldn't it be more interesting to ride your favorite animal? Of course, you sure wouldn't pick a turtle or a snail as your ride. A bear can run 30 miles per hour. An antelope can run 55 miles per hour. But the fastest, the cheetah, can sprint at up to 60 miles per hour. The question is, which one is willing to take you to the park?

WEE ONES

If you have a pet cheetah, bear and antelope, how many pets do you have?

LITTLE KIDS

How many legs do they have altogether?

BIG KIDS

If you can bike at 20 miles per hour but your pet cheetah can take you at 60 miles per hour, how much faster is your spotted pet?
